Important information

There are laws in place which aim to protect superannuation accounts with low balances, and members under age 25 from erosion due to insurance premiums.

Default insurance cover will automatically activate on an EmployeeSaver account when a member
- Has had an account balance of at least $6,000, and
- Is at least 25 years old.

As an EmployeeSaver member, you are able to elect to activate your default insurance cover at any time before your balance reaches $6,000 or you turn 25.

You are an EmployeeSaver member if you joined VicSuper FutureSaver through your employer.

You can complete this form to activate your default insurance cover on your EmployeeSaver account, provided:
- You are aged between 14 and 69, and
- You have not already received default cover on this EmployeeSaver account, and
- You have not elected to opt out of receiving default cover on this EmployeeSaver account, and
- You have not received, or are not entitled to receive at the date of the election a terminal illness or total and permanent disability payment from any policy.

- This form must be completed by the account holder.
- Make sure you read the Insurance handbook to understand the default cover available in your EmployeeSaver account, and the costs associated with this cover.
- This form can only be used to activate default insurance cover.

Activate my default insurance cover on my EmployeeSaver account.

Important points:

- If you are under age 65, upon activating your default insurance cover, you will receive 6 units of death and total and permanent disability cover, and 6 units of income protection cover with a 2 year benefit period and a 90 day waiting period, with all cover in the gereral occupation category.
- If you are over age 65, upon activating your default insurance cover, you will receive 6 units of death only cover.
- Activation of default insurance cover is required if you want to transfer existing cover from another super fund, and/or apply for additional insurance cover (including applying for the New Member Offer if you are eligible).
- There are certain circumstances where you cannot claim for a pre-existing condition. Please refer to the Insurance Handbook for further details.
- By activating your default insurance cover you are also choosing to keep your insurance cover should your account become inactive in the future.

Before activating your default insurance cover, it's important to review your situation and consider whether insurance through us is right for you. Should you decide that any or all of your default insurance cover is not required, provided we receive your request to cancel within 60 days of your cover being activated, relevant premiums will be refunded.
